Sea Coast Defense. The estimate for fortifications and sea coast defense has been increased to $15,324,294 In connection with his estimate Secretary Lamont has made public the following statement of the condition of his work: On the first of July, 1893, but one modern gun had been placed in position. On the first of July, 1597, we shall have completed defenses with armament as follows: Thirteen Winch, thirty-seven Winch, eight winch and four rapid-fire guns and eighty 12-inch mortars. For the the fifteen years preceding 1830 no apprope's lons had been made for engineering work on our permanent coast georeasing sum annually aboved for the "protection, "preseration and repair of existing work which, though o solete as a main reliance, had been so meannered in the modern defensir projects as to play an important Bu Day, part. Payorable Showing.

Seventeen out of 21 12 inch emplacements, 55 out of 60 10-inch emplacements, 20 out of 25 & inch emplacements, 14 out of 16 rapid-fire gun emplacements and 92 out of 156 12-inch mortar emplacements have been entirely provided for during the last four years, and that during the same time a large part of those previously provided for have been prepared to receive their armament. For this favorable showing much is due to the liberality of congress at its recent session. The number of emplacements provided by the act of June 6, 1896, is just 50 in excess of the total provided by all preceding appropriations. The progress in arma-, ment has been equally satisfactory. Imring the calendar year 1893, there had been completed at the army gun factory, the West Point foundry, and the Bethlehem Iron works a total of 31 %-inch, 20 10-inch and 9 12-inch guns and 43 i2-inch mortars. Subsequently, b prior to the fortifications act of June 6, 1806, these totals were raised to 61 8-inch, 56 10-inch and 21 12-inch gons and 80 12-inch mortars completed, waile there were 27 8-inch, 35 10-inch and 29 12-inch guns in process of construction.

STONED THE CAR.

Passengers' Lives Endangered by a Mob Who Wanted To Lynch a Negro. West Chester, Pa., Oct. 19.-Edward

Brown, the negro who attacked Mrs. Thomas Johnson in a suburb of Coatesville Friday night, was landed in jail at this place yesterday. Constable Umstead, who had him in charge, had an exciting experience. When the officer took the culprit from the lock-up in Coatesville to the railroad station a mob of 600 men surrounded him, and it was with the greatest difficulty that he succeeded in placing the frightened negro safely on board the ear, Shouts of "Hang him" rent the air, and several movements were made by the mob as if to wrest the prisoner from the officer's clutches. but it was after the officer and his prisoner were seated in the car that the most exciting time occurred. Stones were hurled through the windows thick and fast, and for a time it looked as if some lives would be eacrificed, while passengers in the car became terror-stricken and rushed in all directions to escape the flying mis-One man, a passenger from the west, was struck on the head by a stone and the whole side of his head was laid open, while a number of others received slight cuts and bruises about the head and body. likely to be wholesale arrests shortly.

London, Oct. 18.—Since the czar complimented the "very fine escort" which the Channel squadron afforded him in his crossing from Portsmouth to Cherbourgh, increased interest has been taken in the condition of the British navy. Mr. Goschen, first lord of the admiralty, has been devoting much thought during the recess to the whole question of naval defense, and he is credited with the intention, in next year's naval estimates, of considerably increasing the sum at present provided for substituting merchant vessels to act as armed cruisers in time of war. The present amount set apart for this purpose is £48,7000, and rumor has it that it will be increased to at least £80,000, in order to allow of nine more vessels participating in the sum annually set aside. Among the new conditions imposed will be not merely an increase in the number of ships, but greater efficiency in their manning and enumment. It is reported that the price to be paid for the new first-class ernisers is £449 000 each. The highest tender was Messrs. Armstrong's, their price being about £500,000, evidently showing that they did not want the

TALKS TO NEWSBOYS

Mr. Bryan Breaks a Rule Not To Make Speeches on Sunday.

DID SO TO OBLICE A FRIEND

Made a Brief Address at Newsboys Hall in Detroit Last Night-At His Own Request Only a Few Visitors, Outside the Boys, Were Present.

Detroit.Oct. 19.—The rule established by William J. Bryan to avoid any public utterances on Sunday was broken last night when he spoke briefly to a gathering of newsboys at the Newsboys' hall. He did it to oblige his friend and supporter, Col. I. B. Butler, president of the Newsboys' association. At Mr. Bryan's request the affair was kept very quiet, and outside of the little vendors a few visitors only were present. This was his speech, in part: "Boys, I did not come to make a speech to-night, because this is the day I rest and I have felt the need of having a day of rest more recently than ever before. But I came because I never like to decline an invitation to be present at any place where an endeavor is being made to do good. And I don't know of any work which is better than that work which is done for boys. We were all boys once-and some of us not so very long ago-and when I see boys I am reminded of what one of our presidents-I think it was Garfield-said: That you couldn't tell what possibilities were buttoned up under the vest of a boy. We are not ourselves responsible for the surroundings of youth. We are born in this world and the surroundings meet us, and to a certain extent they affect us. But beyond that we have much to do with shaping our course What we amount to in this world depends upon the ideas which we have. Some one has said that a person who aims at the stars will shoot higher, which simply means that those who have the highest ideas will accomplish the most. A meeting of this kind, where they teach patriotism. where they teach you regard for each other, respect for each other's rights, necessarily elevates your ideas, gives you broader views of life, and those views will help you to accomplish more. I want you to remember that no good ever comes to boys or men from doing wrong, and that right always pays. I know it is hard always to believe, but if you take the broad view of life and its possibilities you will find that it always pays to do what you believe is right. I want you to remember this also: That you are not the only ones who are benefitted by these things, because the Creator has so arranged the things of this world that when we try to help others we help ourselves. If I can leave this idea with you. I think that it may be of use to you. That the highest good that can come to you is from service-from doing something for others and you will find among your playmates that the boy who does most for the boys around him is the boy who is the truest and is has been so largely increased of late the boy who enjoys hunself most. Mr. and Mrs Bryan attended services at the Westmuster Presbyterian church during the morning in company with Col. I. G. Butler, Hon. Justin R. The Crippled American Line Steamship

Reaches Port Safely. Southampton, Oct. 19.—The Ameri-

As soon as she was in her dock she was boarded by a representative of the United Associated Presses, who interviewed Capt. Watkins as to the accident that befell the engine. Capt. Watkins said that the accident occurred at 8:40 o'clock on the morning of October 8. The starboard shaft broke in the tube at a point about fifty feet from the propeller. The vessel at once stopped and remained stationary for an hour. After a close internal and external examination had been made it was decided not to turn back for New York, but to proceed for Southampton under the port engine. The Paris was 353 miles from New York. During the trip the Paris spoke fully twenty vessels. No attempt to patch up the break could be made owing to its position, and the Paris completed her passage under her port screw. She averaged 12 1-2 knots per hour, and would have made much better time had she not been compelled to drag her starboard screw, which materially retarded her progress. Nevertheless, she covered the course without a hitch. On Friday the passengers met in the saloon and presented a tes-

Into what dreary mazes will they wander?

A MOONSHINE RAID.

BY ROYAL DANIEL.

Weary and travel-stained, aching in every joint and footsore from the long day's tramp, a party of five men sat down upon a huge log beside the narrow mountain road to rest.

We had walked all day. From early dawn we had tramped over the mountains and explored the darksome dells and glades. And now, as we watched the sun sink below the line of hills, we drew a sigh of relief and shifted our position on the log. We were covered with dust, and the languid expression on each face told the story of a hard day's work. Not a word was spoken, and the deep silence only expressed the disappointment that each one felt. The party was composed of five men formation had been received the day before that in a certain locality in the upper corner of Cherokee county an illicit distillery was in operation.

Following the reading of the letter came orders to make preparations for the raid and four brave men were assigned to the work. dust as the gray dawn was streaking from the east, our party alighted from the train at a small way station, and as the tail lights of the receding train faded from view around the curve, we found that we were alone. It was not yet day and the village was sleeping. No signs of life were visible and the gloomy little station seemed to be unconscious of the fact that we had arrived. We had expected to be met by the informer, who was to act as guide and pilot us to the still. We waited a tew minutes, and as he failed to appear it was suggested that we proceed, as our directions were too plainly given for us to miss the way.

In the uncertain light at early dawn we began our journey, and soon the slumbering village was left behind. The morning air was crisp and exhila rating and as we passed the farmhouses, the cocks, just waking from their night's repose, crew lustily as they watched the faint streak of gold in the east. The "still" was supposed to be located about six miles from the station, and as we had already covered two miles we slackened our pace and leisurely climbed the steep hills. Now and then a noisy little brook would ripple across the road, and then the long ascent would reach out before us seemingly a mile away.

As the country people awoke and signs of life became apparent, we were careful to avoid passing the houses, as and possibly, divining our purpose, the friends of the moonshiners would give the alarm. We turned from the road and sought shelter in the dense woods that skirted the highway. We passed steadily on and long before the sun reached the zenith the forks of the road and the tall pine shattered by the lightning's bolt told us that we must leave the mountain road and follow the ravine. "Follow the branch up the hollow," read the letter.

Deep down in the ravines below murplaintive gurgle could be heard above and high toward the heavens the flames tike a silver thread, bouncing and dane- | with ferns and honeysuckle, looked like bly bottom like a bridal veil. As we'de- sleep and darted toward the roaring massed from that of grandeur to solemnity. This was my first trip upon a raid and the character of our business and the rugged scenery filled me with awe. I felt as if I were trespassing. and if the worst should come a rifle ball from the moonshiner might be the penalty of my invasion. We were in the home of the wild mountaineer. Rugged though his domain, his character is in keeping with his surroundings. He is, like the sturdy oak, bent and shorn by many a storm. and is never conquered and bids eternal defiance to his foe.

As we followed the winding stream, and carefully picked our way over crag and stone, the very murmur of the water seemed to warn us not to proceed. One of the men waved his hand for silence, and we quickly executed his order. We had reached the end of the ravine and all thought that the still was near at hand. The silence was fearful. Not a dry twig war snapped, not a stone was tumbled down the mountain side -it was the silence of death. Carefully and gently the intervening foliage was parted with our hands. We gazed into the interior of the swamp. A look of disappointment settled over the face of the party. The still was not there. Our instructions had been followed, but the game had not been located.

Up the steep mountain side we climbed our way and when the road was reached we sat down upon the tog to rest. We were exhausted from the day's search and the cool breeze was refreshing and pleasant. As we rested we watched the sun sink out of sight, and the fading reflection was met by the shadows of the gathering twilight. The twilight rapidly grew into night and the mountains faded from view until the whole landscape was shut out by the veil of darkness.

We were in a dilemma. Night had overtaken us and possibly a host of moonshiners, having seen us during the afternoon, were even then marshalling their forces for an attack.

Time was slipping past. Action was necessary and delay meant increased danger. The situation was discussed.

Across the valley a familiar sound was wafted on the evening air. Instantly we were upon our feet and listening for a repetition of the sound. In a moment again it came, and this time more distinct and certain. The officers exchanged significant glances. Again and again sounded the ax as each blow was given by the woodsman.

Down in the ravine we saw a little blaze and presently the dim outline of -moke curled up through the times. We I new the meaning, and the sounds of the ax were as significant to the officers as the click of the instrument is to the telegraph serator. In a low conversation the raid was planned, and like stealthy redskins we crept down the mountain. A faint light was cast in front of us and presently the hum of voices reached our ears. We were eager with excitement and our whole beings thrilled with expectancy. I remembered that we were in a dangerous locality and I fancied that the hum of bullets would soon break the monetony. I shaddered, and a colu, chally sensation erept over me.

The fire increased and the men went about their work. They were unsussecting and laughed loudly at a joke that was being told. I watched the jol ly crowd intently. Suddenly a man leaped from the opposite side and with drawn revolver that gleamed murderously under the glow of the fire, demanded that hands go up. My heart leaped to my mouth, but to my disappointment no resistance was made. Never have I seen such a surprised expression on the face of a human being. Consternation was written in every line. The echo of their merry laughter had hardly ceased before a low cry of astonishment escaped f om the mountaineer's white lips. He was helpless and in despair.

The scene was one of wildness, and the glare of the fire threw giim, long shadows from out the group. On the mountain sides the shadows looked like hob-goblins and giants.

"Where is your ax?" asked an officer of the captain. Not a word was spoken in reply. The question was repeated. but evoked no answer. The captain was resolute. He knew only too well for what purpose the ax was wanted Not only his liberty, but his property was to be destroyed, and he was determined that he would not lend a helping hand by giving the desired informa-

The officers searched the place for the ax, and when it was found the work of destroying the still was quickly done.

The sharp blade descended into the worm and in a few moments the dis-Hlery lay in a heap of ruin . Standing close at hand was a large vat, in which many gallons of whisky was stored. As the officers approached the vat I saw a look of anger plainly outlined upon the moonshiner; faces. They had watched the progress of destruction with almost a look of resignaour appearance would exerte suspicion I tion, but when the valuable liquid that represented many days of toll and a year's crop was about to be distroyed their old accustomed spirit was awakened in their breasts and their eyes gleamed murderously. With a mighty stroke the ax descended upon the vat, and when the keen blade was withdrawn the mountain whisky gurgled out. A match was struck to the heap and like a flash the flames shot up through the funnelshaped vat. The whisky had saturated the wood and burned like wild fire. mured the mountain stream, and its it was a bonfire on a gorgeous scale the sighing of the trees. The brook lay leaped. London, Oct. 13 .- The fight between 'Pedlar" Palmer of London and Johnnie Murphy of Boston for the bantam-weight championship of the world took place last night at the National Sporting club and was won by Palmer. Both men were in excellent condition. and each weighed in at 114% pounds. Palmer was a good favorite in the betting at odds of 9 to 4 on. The Englishman forced the fighting from the outset of the battle. He was much the quicker in his deliveries, and he hustled Murphy round the ring in lively style. In the first two rounds Murphy failed to land a single good blow. Nevertheless, he stood up bravely and took punishment pluckily as l'almer rained blows upon him with his right and left. The pluck of the Yankee boy was heartily applanded. In the third round Murphy landed once or twice. but did no apparent damage to his opponent. Murphy started in the fourth round with more advantage, but he was terribly slow. Round after round Palmer rushed Murphy about the ring, but the American did not show that he had been punished much until the end of the twelfth round. Then he went to his corner very tired. before time was cailed, however, he pulled himself together and made a splendid fight in the thirteenth round Despite his plack he was too terribly battered to recover permanently and Palmer had the battle in hand to the finish. At the end of the twentieth round Palmer was declared the winner on points. Murphy was not knocked of Conversation. Prof. Max Muller, of Oxtord, in a recent lecture, has called attention to the largest book in the world, the wonderful "Kutho Daw." It consists of 729 parts in the shape of white marble plates, covered with inscriptions, each plate built over with a temple of brick. it is found near the old priest city of Mandalay, in Burma, and this temple city, of more than 700 pagodas, virtually makes up this monster book, the religous codex of the Buddhists. In accordance with the three parts of which it is composed, generally called the figurative sense "baskets" (pitaka), the whole is often termed "the three baskets" (tripataka), and constitutes a library larger than the Bible and Koran together. As the Jews figured out that the Old Testament contained 59,493 words and 2,728,100 letters, so the Buddhist priests have computed that the "Tripitaka" contains 275,250 stanzas and 8,803,000 syllables. This monster book is written in Pali. Rather strange to say, it is not an ancient production, but its preparation was prompted by the Buddhistic piety of this century. It was erected in 1857 by the command of Mindomin, the second of the last lings of Burna. As the influence of the tropical cl mate has already marred the inscriptions, a Pritish official, Mr. Perrars, proposes to have these 729 plates carefully photographed, and rsked that the government, or some friend of science able to do so, make provisions for this. Prof Muller urges that this be done in order to preserve at least the pictures of this unique tomrle city book.

A noteworthy contrast is furnished by a recent German literary journal describing what is probably the smallest book in the world. This is a "Konversationslexicon," published in Berlin, and prepared by Daniel Sanders. The volume occupies the space of only six cubic centimeters (.366 cubic inch), although it is claimed to contain 175,000 words.—Literary Digest.

It is announced that the coal trust has desided not to advance prices again until after election. After that they will be marked up twenty-five cents a monthuntil the limit of the consumer's endurance is reached.

John F. Dicks is an eminently practical man and will make a most excellent Water Commissioner. He is possessed of sound sense and good judgment and can render the people of this city very valuable and very efficient service it they elect him to this important office.

The report that Garret A. Hobart has resigned from the directory of the Susquehanna and Western because it is one or the coal frust roads as denied. Mr Hobart has wit enough to see that after having been identified with trusts and monopolies all his like, an eleventh hour repentance will not save him from the wrath or the people he has helped to pil, age.

Even Republicans admit that the chances of the Democratic city ticket are improving. The superior qualifications and acknowledged fitness of the candidates commend them to the voters of all parties and many Republicans do not hesitate to openly say that it is time for a change in the administration of city and for a return to more economical methods of government. They understand that relief from high taxes can come only through the election of the Democratic candidates and for this become the pastor of the church. reason hundreds o Republicans will vote The Democratic ticket.

He has for some time been Vice Chairman of the Conductors' Grievance Committee on the Erie system from New York to Chicago, and has assisted in the adjustment of a number of cases in a manner satisfactory both to employer indement and varied practical experience and will, if elected, make a most excellent legislator, looking closely after all the interests of his constituents.

The National Democrats have nominated Charles J. Patterson, of Brooklyn, for Supreme Court Judge in place of H. B. Hubbard, who declined the nomination previously declined by Judge Clement.

If the people of Middletown realized what an advantage it would be to the business of this city to have a Supreme Court Judge located here, Mr. O'Neill would receive the practically unanimous vote of his fellow citizens. The holding of special terms on two Saturdays in each month would bring here lawyers and litigants and their witnesses from all parts of the district, while the exparte; business that comes before a judge would bring lawyers here at all times. There is not a business interest in the city that would not be benefited by Mr. O'Neill's election, and since the office of Judge is in no proper sense political, it is certain that Mr. O'Neill will receive a very generous and very flattering support from his fellow citizens.

In the event of a Republican victory in this State and in the nation the coal trust will have a clear field in which to exercise its rapacity. With the Vice President as their friend and abetto, the parties to the conspiracy need not fear prosecution. In the event of the election of Black as Governor, they will have a warm friend in the man who is slated as Black's private secretary, namely, "Lou" Pavo, the notorious lobbyist. Pavo knew what he was about when he succeaded in inducing Boss Platt to allow his protege to be nominated for Governor. He will control legislation at Albany from the introduction of a bill to the signing of the same. It is very unlikely that he will permit any further legislation affecting the coal trust, or permit the Attorney General to do his duty with the laws already in operation. Indeed, the Attorney General will be only too glad of some additional excuse to keep his hands off the coal trust. He has refused thus far to put a stop to what is a plain violation of law. The only relief from the grinding tryranny of trusts is the election of a Democratic President and Democratic Governor.

A DARING ESCAPE FROM JAIL.

Forger Lyon Finds an Easy Way of Getting from Behind Prison Bars. From Our Goshen Correspondent

James B. Lyon, who was indicted at Newburgh, last week, for forgery committed at Port Jervis, some time ago. escaped from Goshen jail at about 6:15 o'clock, Saturday evening. When Turnkey Benjamin Hull went to dinner at 5:50 everything at the jail was apparently as it should be. It is the custom of Deputy Hull to lock the prisoners in their cells at 6:30 o'clock and | when he returned from dinner and set about this task Lyon was found to be:

Investigation disclosed the fact that a rope had in some manner been made fast. to the skylight, that Lyon had climbed it and had used the same rope to aid him in his descent from the roof to the ground.

How the rope came into Lyon's possession is a mystery that Sheriff Beakes and his deputies are endeavoring to solve. Inquiry among the prisoners elicited the fact that Lyon also had a revolver. How he got the weapon is another mystery. Further than the statement of the above fact the prisoners will disclose nothing. It seems very probable that he had assistance from made the jail and two men, who visited the jail Saturday, are suspected of having supplied him with the rone and revolver.

I you is described as five feet, four inches in height, rather slight, weight about 110 pounds. He wore a plaid suit of elothes, brown derby, had black eves and was clean shaven.

Sherm Beakes has an idea as to Lyon's whereabouts, and it is thought that he has not gone torever, but will be recaptured within a lew days.

PRESBYTERY OF HUDSON.

People of the Westtown Church Unwilling to Let Their Pastor Co-Presbytery Thinks He Should Remain.

A special meeting of the Presbytery of Hudson was held in the First Presbyterian church in this city, today, to consider the application of Rev. Taylor, of the Westtown church, for the dissolution of the pastoral relation.

Thomas S. Hulse and E. V. R. Gardner, commissioners representing the Westtown thurch, presented the following memorial, which was signed by nearly all the members of the church and congregation:

To the Presbytery of Hudson: The undersigned members of the church and congregation of the Pre-byterian Church of Westtown, N. Y., do most respectfully and earnestly submit the following reasons for not uniting with our beloved pastor, Rev. Robert H. Taylor, in his request for the dissolution of the partor Trelation now existing between himself and our church.

Mr. Taylor assumed the pastorate on the 9th day of May, 1889, it being his first charge as a pastor, and it was commenced under somewhat peculiar circumstances. The church had been practically vacant for over a year, and the pu pit filled by supplies, most of whom were the classmates of Mr. Taylor from the semin-

II. Mr. Taylor, by his earnest, prudeut and zealous efforts, brought the church out of a somewhat dormant condition into which it had fallen, and infused a large amount of vitality and earnestness in the spiritual condition of the members of the church, and also an intense earnestners in the regular attendants of the church, who were not communicants, in many cases resulting in their conversion.

Hi. At his desire the interior of the church was improved, a new organ procured, sheds erected and other changes made which have proved efficient and added to the comfort and convenience of the congregation. And all this has been done without iriction, but harmonously and quietly.

IV. The church is united and has been running very smoothly and pleasantly during the whole or his pastorate. In all his efforts he has been ably and efficiently aided by his most excellent wife, and both Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have so grown into the hearts of the members of this congregation and of the community that a seperation at this time seems al most to be an impossibility.

V. At the meeting of the congregation at which the commissioners nere appointed and desired to present this memorial to the Presbytery, a unammous and hearty and urgent desire was expressed that the pastoral relations should not be dissolved.

VI. During Mr. Taylor's pastorate there have been added to the church on conression of their faith, after examinatron by the session, twenty-five the first year: fourteen the second year: five the third year; four the fourth year; nine the fifth year: twenty-one the sixth year and six the last year, making a total of eighty-four. Almost all of these were young men and women, whose lives were thus given to the work of the Saviour at their beginning. A vigorous society of Young People's Christian Endeavor was organized and still continues its work.

VII. Mr. Taylor is a good citizen and exerts a strong influence in the com--Frank Stevenson, of Jersey City | munity outside of the immediate membership of his church. We do not make this protest in the spirit of opposition to the wishes of our Saturday night, from an extended visit pastor, but do so in the belief that, so iar as we have been able to discover, the very strongest reasons exist why this pleasant and profitable pastoral relation should remain as it is. Yet if the Presbytery should feel that under all the cirrumstances this relation should be dissolved, we will cheerfully acquiesce in its decision, and with all our hearts bid God speed to our pastor and his wife, with our best wishes for their future, and our prayers for his success in winning souls for Christ in his new field of labor.

Afterfull discussion Presbytery voted against dissolving the pastorial relation and Mr. Taylor announced his cheerful acquiescence in the decision of Presbytery

There was a pleasant wedding, Saturday evening, at the residence of Mrs Doyle, on Mulberry street, on which occasion her daughter, Miss Nellie Holly was united in marriage to Frank Gard

The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. A. Heath, pastor of the Pitst Baptist Church, in the presence of about fifty relatives and infimate friends. The groom is a well known employe of the Wallkill hat works and the baide has been employed in Millen & Co.'s shut factory for some time. Both stand high in the estimation of their shopmates and their acquaintances generally.

Injured in a Collision on a Dark Sirect Saturday evening, as F. C. Foster was driving up Mulberry street, and Frank Kane was driving down the same street, which is both dark and narrow, the wheels of their wagons interlocked. Mr. Foster's horse sprang forward and broke loose from the wagon and dragged him over the dashboard. Mr. Faster held fast to the lines and succeeded in stop ping his horse. He was quite badly bruised about the hip, but is able to be about to-day. Mr. Kane was not hurt.

From a Freight Train in Pront of the Mountain Express-A Third Man Badiy

Saturday evening, at about 5:30 o'clock, three men who la been seen about the village all day in the vicinity or the Green, where they had industrious ly worked the "growler," boarded an east bound freight train somewhere near James street, in Goshen. At the Cross street crossing they alighted, and at that moment the Mountain Express, rounding the curve, struck and instantly killed two of them, and injured the other so that his life was for a time despaired or.

The injured man was conveyed to the Erie baggage room and Dr. Robinson summoned to attend him. No boues were broken, and his principal injuries were a deep gash and numerous bruises about the head. While at the baggage room he gave his name as James Wallace, of 71 Washington street, Paterson. A telegram sent to that address elicited the information that no one of that name resided there. He was finally removed to Orange Farm, and last evening it was expected that he would recover. Yesterday he said that his name was James McCauley, that he lived in Paterson and that his companions were imknawa to him.

Coroner Decker took charge of the bodies of the men who were killed and them removed to Van Vliet's undertaking rooms, where they were viewed by a jury. An inquest will be held tomorrow afternoon.

On one of the bodies was found a revolver and a receipt for $1.90, its purchase price, dated Pittston, Pa., Oct. 13. made out to John Fancis.

Nothing was found on the other body by which it could be identified, but Coroner Decker telegraphed a description of it to Chief of Police Graul, of Paterson. who, this afternoon, telegraphed that he recognized the description as answering that of Tom Harrison, of Scranton, better known as "Scranton Tom" a "bum" known to all the tramps and most of the officers of Pennsylvania. Standing in the door of her mountain iome, a woman steadfastly scanned the aving. Her eyes sparkled with merriment and she laughingly toted the plump little hand of her child, which was held tightly to her bosom. The night wind fanned her brow and her wavy brown hair played hide and seek with the breeze. She kissed the fair charge that lay laughingly on her be--om and turned to close the door for the night. Upon the floor she saw a ray of y-How light that streaked through the open shutters. The little child laughed at the outer arties of the stream of Eight as it hung suspended likea golden thread. The mother's trained eye watched the reflection that threw a faint light in the cabin. With a throbbing heart she stepped to the window. Her suspicions were correct—the light came from the ravine below. What could it mean? And then like a flash the truth dawned upon her. The still was being detroyed and she distinctly heard now the stroke of the ax as the vat was cut to pieces.

Like a tigress at bay she leaped to the door and through the dark of the night; the bright yellow glare ascended from the depths below. With one bound she reached for the rifle, and resting upon the casing of the door, she pulled the trigger. A deafening report rang out ueross the mountains and reveroerated through the hollows. She paused. Far away come back the answer to her sigand, and another, and still another, until the hill-ides multiplied the echoes, when it sounded as if a legion of guns were iring. The signal of death was soundof tartil the twickling of stars seemed to loin in the general fusillade. The mountalneers were awake. But we were rapidly nearing the station. We had heard the first shot and at once made a basty light with our prisoners, knowing full well v hat the alarm would result in. It meant death, and leaving the still in the power of the flame, we made a rapid journey to the station. Far to our rear se heard the signal answered and then the general alarm sounded out upon the still night. We hurried on and reached the station just as the midnight train ome by. With the three prisoners we mrried on board.

As I left the train ' extended the tooonshiners my hand and wished them a speedy trial and a short sentence, They faintly smiled, but said nothing. As I passed out of the door the owner of the still looked wistfully out of the car window. AN ELEPHANT'S PRANK, this Pachyderm Possessed a Keen Sense of linguar.

The elephant is the most intelligent if all animals. He thinks for masselt, ad no matter in what position be may to place of or what emergencies he may be called upon to meet, he seems to be equal to ad occusions. He has also a strong serve of humor, which at times is so marked as to be aimost human,

This east of the Lumorous was the usually will developed in an elephant in the Jardin des Plantes in Paris. He was lept in a great includic out in the open six, so that he had plenty of room to roam about. In the same inclosure was a very large Lippopotamus, for whose comfort and renusement a great stone basin had been built and filled with water, and the hippopotataus in turn furnished amusement for the elephant. I was quite early one morphic before the hour for admitting the public to the garden swhen I of eed the elephant walking around on the stone edge of the basin enriously watching the hippopotamus...

dust as soon as the ears of the hippopulations came into view the elehant quickly seized one of them with his trunk and gave it a sudden pull, The engined hypopotamus lifted its cord rous head clear of the water and sported and blow, but every time he tore to take breath the deplant would recommence his antics. Around and cround the beast would go, keeping a sharp loof our for the little ears of the dippopotamus, which he would seize the moment they appeared. His evident delight in teasing his huge neighbor was very comical, and there could be no doubt that he thoroughly enjoved it. Again, one day, the keeper placed some food for the hippopotamus in a orner of the inclosure and at once the appopolarous began to leave the water get it, but the elephant slowly amided to the same corner, and, arriving there first, he placed his four feet over the favorite food in such a way that the himpoporumus could not get at it, gently swayed his trunk back and forth and ceted altogether as though he were there quite accidentally, until the garden was thrown open to the public and he went forward to receive the daily contributions of bread, cake, pic, etc., which were always offered him by his host of admirers. KITE PHOTOGRAPHY.

Recent Experiments in Boston Ly an Expert Operator.

Possibilities of the Method in War Time for Armies and Navies-High Builds ings Would Not Be Necessary for Observations

William A. Eddy writes of his recent experiments in Boston. "The use of kine photography for the army and masy a yet it, a proneer state, and many improsenients remain to be made in the apparatus with which I took the first kate mid-air photograph of Boston on August 25, 1990, at 10:40 a. m. The wind on Monday had been too high to enable me to raise my camera to a sufficreat height to enable me to expose the film. There is nothing a kite seems to resent so much as the addition of a weight to the line running up to it. In order to lift a camera weighing three pounds to a height of 1,000 feet a strong uplifting pull of 20 or 30 pounds must be exerted. If the wind is light, as many as eight kites, each one seven feet in diameter, must be employed, but if the wind is strong, say 20 miles an hour, the same work may be better done by means of the upward pull of five kites of the same size.

"The obstacles to be overcome in midair photography are form dable, esrecially when the kites are sent up from grass plot or from ground covered by bushes. The sudden decline of the kites, due to a falling off in the wind, may drop the camera-snapping line to the ground, where it may become entangied in weeds. In flying kites high build ngs. like the new Tremont building in Boston, where my recent experiments were curried out, the chief difficutty to overcome was the updraft and whirling air currents which pertain to ail high buildings, especially at noon, when the sun shining upon vertical walls gives rise to strong vertical currents. Another difficulty to be obviated in regard to kite photography from high buildings arises from a lower tandem kite catching in an overhanging cornice when the wind is light and a line of six or seven kites is steadily falling, owing to want of wind. The inside kite by becoming stalled at the cornier may make it impossible to draw in the declining kites, causing the whole line to go down over tree tops, chimneys

"There are many great improvements to be made in kite photography, the principal one of which is the exposure of a film which is very wide and which would include more of the horizon line. At the same time the camera shutter will be of ened and closed by electricity. which will also turn a new film into dace. This would do away with the bouling down of the camera at the completion of each exposure. So uncertain is the wind that any device which will save time most greatly facilitate the "The value of kite photography in the army is beyond question, because it rosts far less than that of balloons, and because the emmeros can be kept above a local point in strong winds, which bas brawayah socilal a seni binow force the gas out of it, destroying its buoyancy. | Incame thente our beauty beyond very high hills. The photograv les tat en at a height of several hundred fer above Bine Hill observatory. reveal a acties and horizon line beyond. an adjacent ligh full of the range. The smidle of a modimes, the dust of warrin trains, would corrolally reveal the appropen of a repos. In the rass the rapid not on of a man-of-war would keep the camera in the air during a dead redm, while by the use of a steam launch a camera in mid-air supported by kites could be towed toward shere in shallow water where a map-of-war could not enter. I propose to make further experiments to enable me to point my camera nearly in the direction from which the sun is shining. I think this can be done by excluding part of the sun's rive by means of a projection roof to the lens, and with the size of thin rolored glass.

"Should this succeed, then eight cameras, back to back, in the form of an octagen, could be shapped at once, revealler the smoke pennant of an enemy's tessel 40 miles away, should the octagen camera be raised to a height of 900 feet. Such a camera could be read ly lifted in a dead calm at sea by means of eight kites, 29 feet in diameter, should the man-of-war move at the rate of 15 miles an hour.

"We all like to look out from mountains, and nearly all the aeronauts bave mentioned their exhibitation at the vast. hellow hawl-like earth below them. with its horizon line forming a ring level with the eye. All our high buildings are sought for purposes of such observations. In the level landscape, often extending bundreds of miles in the central west, such vistas, taken with the aid of the kite-nir enmern, must be a'ven's interesting to many people. According to the weather bureau records August is usually the nuldest month of the year. In photographing Boston with my kite camera I have been de-Irved several days by unfavorable con dicions which prevented me from tak ing as many photographs of important hatoric parts of the city as I would like to have taken. I am indebted to J. W. Smith, of the weather bureau, to C. W. Clark, to H. A. Horton and to countless others for friendly help in meny difficult emergencies,"-Springfield (Mass.) Republican.
